

Everyone Has a Tale to Tell

Invariably when families get together, conversations often lead to the telling and retelling of favorite stories of years past: The time Grandpa brought the new car home and wrecked it that same day; how Mom and Dad met; the Christmas the power went out... Every family has such stories and every family tells them.

But the people who lived them won't be around forever. That's why it is important for our children and children's children that we preserve those memories by recording our parents and grandparents' versions of these tales on video or audio.

Here is a link to some tips on how to best conduct a family interview.

Of course, Home Video Studio specializes in the preservation of family memories. Call us today for more tips and suggestions. 352-735-8550.